Name:

Karim Khan

Position:

Editor in Chief, BJSM and Open BMJ Sports & Exercise Medicine (BOSEM)

I have read and understood the BMJ policy on declaration of interests and declare the following interests:

- 1) Coauthor – Brukner & Khan's Clinical Sports Medicine textbook. Receive royalties from McGraw-Hill Publishers (Sydney)
- 2) Formerly employed at Aspetar Orthopaedic and Sports Medicine Hospital, Qatar. Ceased working there on January 14, 2016 and not associated/affiliated or in any relationship with Aspetar since then.
- 3) Coauthor of two older books with minimal sales now and minimal royalties (<$50 per year). (a) Physical Activity and Bone Health (Human Kinetics Publishers) and (b) The Encyclopaedia of Sports Medicine.
- 4) I have written chapters in various books but receive no royalties on those chapters
- 5) I serve on the Scientific Advisory Committee for the IOC Diplomas in (i) Sports Medicine and (ii) Sports Physiotherapy and I receive an honorarium for those roles. I also am paid for having provided lectures in each of those programs.
- 6) I serve on the Scientific Committee for the IOC World Conference in Injury and Illness Prevention (Monaco, 2017) and this appointment is unpaid but my flight to the Conference is paid
- 7) I serve on the Scientific Committee for the IOC Advanced Team Physician Courses (2016 edition in Cape Town) and this appointment is unpaid
- 8) Primary appointment is Professor, Department of Family Practice and School of Kinesiology, University of British Columbia, Vancouver, Canada.
- 9) Honorary Professor (without salary) at: University of Queensland, University of Western Australia, and La Trobe University. I believe they all come with parking privileges and library access but I have not availed myself of those.
- 10) I am a member of the Royal Society of Medicine, London (paid by me)
